

Robin Schulz provides electronic beats at the Top of the Mountain Easter Concert in Ischgl

On Easter Sunday, 5 April 2026, the Idalp at an altitude of 2,300 metres will become the stage for an extraordinary concert experience: Joker Popart Club will kick things off before star DJ Robin Schulz takes over as the main act at the Top of the Mountain Easter Concert.

When electronic sounds fill the mountains and the Easter spirit meets festival fever, Ischgl is the place to be. At the Top of the Mountain Easter Concert, concert-goers can look forward to a double musical highlight with the Joker Popart Club and superstar Robin Schulz in the middle of the Silvretta Arena. From 1 p.m., the Joker Popart Club will open the afternoon with a 50-minute set, before Robin Schulz takes over as the main act and gets the audience in the mood for dancing with his world-famous beats. The concert is part of the "Spring Blanc" event series, which extends winter in Ischgl into May and ensures unforgettable spring days in the mountains with highlights such as atmospheric sundowners, culinary experiences and other top concerts. Admission to the Easter Concert is included in a valid ski pass.

Robin Schulz live in Ischgl

Since his international breakthrough with the remix of "Waves" (2014), Robin Schulz has been one of the most successful DJs and producers worldwide. With hits such as "Prayer in C", "Sugar" and "OK", he has conquered the charts and gets millions of people dancing with his sounds ranging from deep house to electro and pop. After performing at festivals around the world, he is coming to Ischgl at Easter and transforming the Idalp into an open-air party zone.

Joker Popart Club as the opening act

The concert begins at 1 p.m. with Joker Popart Club, a group that blends electronic music with visual art elements. With their energetic opening act, they create a creative start to the day and perfectly prepare the audience for the main act, Robin Schulz. More information at: www.jokerpopartclub.com.
